

The Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, as part of the FSHD-Wellstone Muscular Dystrophy Cooperative Research Center, is recruiting volunteers with FSHD and their family members for a clinical research study. Volunteers will be asked to provide blood and muscle samples to be repositied in a research core facility. Although there is no direct benefit to the volunteer, the samples are anticipated to be a great asset in multiple studies within the FSHD-Wellstone and the larger FSHD research community. Volunteers will be reimbursed for medical and travel costs associated with the study.

Interested individuals should call the Principal Investigator Kathryn Wagner, M.D., Ph.D. at 410-502-7220.
